‘Abandoning Science’: Scientific American Backs Biden for POTUS with First Endorsement in Its 175-Year History, Despite Obama’s Shoddy Environmental Record

Even though Biden recently flip-flopped on a fracking ban (he doesn’t support one), he is now being endorsed by the faith-based community known as Scientific American. They really need to change their name to Corporate Anti-Scientific American. The two words ‘science’ and ‘American’ don’t go together. Americans don’t believe in science, we believe in the God-given right of corporations to destroy the planet through fracking, pollution, the military and fossil fuels. And don’t even get me started on race denial. We’re the greatest country ever, say the conservatives, but somehow, we can’t figure out how to rip ourselves away from the super-clean vegetable known as coal.

Now, if this was really about science, Scientific American would be endorsing the Green Party (its in the name for f’s sake). Then, they would point out that Obama opened the arctic to drilling twice, allowed fracking to continue, did nothing for Flint’s water, didn’t help Standing Rock defeat the Dakota Access Pipeline and ramped up wars in the Middle East intentionally designed to make Oil companies rich. Biden also supports the Venezuela coup that Trump started because he’s a Putin puppet, even though Putin backs Maduro. And we know that that’s all about the fact that Venezuela has twice as much oil as Saudi Arabia. If you support science, don’t vote for Joe Biden, cancel your subscription to Scientific American.
